A high school booster club uses double wall cups digitally printed with the football team's photo on one side and the schedule on the other. Members of the team then sell the cups for $10 with a discount card inside of them. This card has several restaurants that give discounts to those that come in with the card.

For a graduation party, a student has pictures of herself throughout the years printed on double wall tumblers. The tumblers are placed around the party for guests to use for snacks or beverages.

A local restaurant has our 16oz Insulated Tumbler for sale as a souvenir with a full color logo on one side and a message on the other for customers to bring the cup back in to get free refills.

At a trade show, a company hands out digitally printed stadium cups to attendees that have a special message for them to come back to the booth later in the day. The company then would then serve an ice cold beverage to those that come back with the cup.
